

The Adfinis Cloud Readiness-Check – your jumping off point into the cloud

Are you on your way into the cloud but not quite sure where to start? Adfinis has you covered. We offer a quick, free Cloud Readiness-Check during which we will analyze your status quo, locate your current stage within the cloud journey and develop an individual strategy for further actions.

The Cloud Readiness-Check takes about one hour. During this time, we will discuss with you all the main cloud journey topics you need to know in order to be able to move towards the goal of being cloud native.

You will learn the overall transformation principles that are necessary for moving into the cloud, from the effective use of public clouds, the introduction of DevOps processes into your organization and the shift towards using a micro services architecture.

We will talk about the use of containers and why container orchestration is absolutely vital. You will hear our recommendations when it comes to public clouds such as Microsoft Azure. And you will learn how to manage security when developing in the cloud.

During the Cloud Readiness-Check, we will also talk about how your internal work processes, your culture and mindset need to change in order to tackle the cloud journey. Becoming cloud native is not just about the tools you use; it is also about the collaboration between internal and external teams and about defining the right workflows.

At the end of the workshop, you will have time to ask all your questions and we will discuss the possible next steps. The Cloud Readiness-Check can be held in German or English, is non-binding and will be conducted with our Solutions Engineers.
